New Haven, 10th May, 1832. I have witnessed the application of the artificial nip-pte, invented by Dr. Pratt, it operated well, much to the satisfaction of the mother. The instrument seems well adapted for such as one afflicted with excertated nipples. THOS. HUBBARD, M. D., Prof. Surgery, Med. Inst. of Yale College, Conn.

Washington, Febuary, 4th 1834. Having examined Dr. Pratt's newly invented nipple smeld, and witnessed its practical application, I take great pleasure in recommending it as decidedly superior to any thing previously known. It constitutes a perfect remedy for that distressing malady, sore nipples, a discose which so frequently afflicts pursing women.

THOMAS SEWALL.

Philadelphia, January 13th, 1834.

Dr. Elijah Pratt; DEAR SIR . As I feel it a matter of much public im portance, to possess a means for lessining the terrible suf terings from "sore nipples," I have much pleasure in being able to say that the shield for the preventing and cure of this malady, is better adapted to the purpose than any I have heretofore seen. In the two or three instances I have known them to be used, much satisfacinstances I have known them to be desiration to believe tion has been expressed, and have no hesitation to believe it will generally succeed. I am so well persuaded of this at this moment, that I cannot forbear to express a wish that our City, through the various apothecaries, may be supplied with them.

I am yours &c. W. P. DEWEES.

BOSTON NOTION.—THE LARGEST NEWSPA-PER IN THE WORLD.

THE spirit of the age is utilitarian. Improvement is stamped upon the face of every thing. All the useful arts are progressing with unparalleled rapidity; and the art of printing is coming in for its full share of the common Improvement. Determined not to be outdone in any thing that pertains to his profession, where there is a fair chance for exertion and enterprise, the undersigned has determined upon issuing a sheet twice the size of the Boston Weekly Times, (and to take the place of that paper) and will continue eight columns more matter than the Brother Jonathan. This sheet will be called the BOSTON NOTION.—and it is determined that it shall fully sustain a cognomen so full of meaning, and so interwoven with the established character of our Yankee City: It will be the largest newspaper in the world-and no exception-and will be printed on a sheet thirty seven by fifty two inches. It will be entirely filled with reading matter; and will contain three thousand eight hundred and eighty eight square inches or twenty seven square feet of print in fine type! and a single number will contain more reading than an ordinary book of three hundred pages. These great dimensions will enable the publisher to draw largely upon the most popular periodica s and magazines of theday, both American and Foreign; and as the selections will be made with great care, it is believed this paper will be a welcome NOTION to every family. Besides a new synopsis of the current news of the day (as published in the Boston Daily Times) it will contain Poetry, Popular Tales Theatrical Criticisms. Police, and other Court Reports, Humorous articles, &c. &c.

The whole world of literature will be ransacked to fill it. From the study of the Philosopher, down to the Police Court, thro' all the regions of reason, poetry, ro mance, wit, and the ample record of folly, we shall glean from the past and present, and from all nations, to pre-sent as pleasing and useful combination of recorded thought and current history, as the world can produce.— This is our "BOSTON NOTION."

The great amount of wisdom and fun-of wit and philosophy-of novelties and antiquities-we are enable to offer weekly for six cents per copy—only six cents and we can do it, because of the facilities of our press and office, and the connections of daily and weekly publications. For three dollars we can sell a years volume equal in quantity of matter; with every variety also, to fitty two volumes of novels, such as are issued from the press at this day. Fifty two large volumes for three dollars! Effected all by improved machinery, and by a determination that we will not be outdone in enterprise and usefulness.

TERMS. THREE DOLLARS a year, always in advance. No orders, no matter from what source, will be attended to, unless accompanied with the CASH. Single copies, six

Post Masters or others, remitting twenty dollars shall have eight copies sent to such persons and places as they may designate.

Mail subscribers will have their papers deposited rn the Post Office in this city every Saturday evening.
GEORGE ROBERTS, Publisher.

POSTCRIPT. The NOTION will be published on a DOUBLE SHEET, every three months and sent as gratuity to all subscribers who have paid for one year. Publishers of newspaper throughout the country, who will give the above Prospectus two or three insertions in their respective papers, shall receive the Notice and Daily Times, for one year.

Circumstances, however, instead of 3 3 4 o'clock, as at present, of which travellers in the execution of the great scheme of Colonization, must often take place in the execution of the great scheme of Colonization, must often take place which are calculated to enlist the warmest and tenderest feelings of our nature, and thus become a basis on which to ground extraneous appeals to the community. We ask the friends of humanity to listen one moment to the following statement: The late WM. HUNTON, of Fauquier county, and State of Virginia, by his last will and tastament, provided for the settlement in Liberia of thirty-four servants, belonging to his estate, who sailed in the last expedition of the Saluda; among them were one woman with eight children, and another woman with four children. We are, however, compelled to say that the husbands of these women are still in Virginia; a fact which did not come to our knowledge in time for us to make any effort for enabling them to accompany their families. They belong to individuals known to be unable to release them without some equivalent. This is a plain statement, and, on the ground of this statement, will not the benevolent and philanthropic give us aid in attempting to purchase these servants? The Rev. Dr. SAVAGE, on the 6th of April, after speaking of the health of the missionaries, including those just then arrived at Cape Palmas, says: "But what is butter than health, God has vouchsafed to us a 'season of refreshing from his presence.' > "We entertain hopes of the conversion of all our colonist children, in a course of preparation to become teachers, (four boys and two girls,) besides three other girls indirectly connected with the Mission. Ten native scholars, we think, have met with a change of heart. There are others also, who have expressed a hope of a similar change, but of them we cannot speak in terms of confidence. We believe nineteen souls at this station to have passed from death unto life during this gracious season. The first convert was Susan, in who e behalf I made an appeal in December, 1836. Now to what shall we ascribe so rich a blessing! We acknowledge ourselves unworthy of it. Is it to the prayers of that few at home?"

The Rev. Mr. PAYNE writes on the same day from Cape Palmas: "The ship Saluda arrived yesterday, bringing to us safely and in health, brother MINOR and wife, and the Rev. Mr. SHITH. As the vessel sails this afternoon, and Dr. Savage has already communicated to you the most interesting intelligence from our Mission, I will only add a few lines. And I cannot but talk, my dear sir, of the gracious influence with which God has been pleased to refresh and encourage us during three or four weeks. This work commenced at this station under the faithful labors of our dear brother, Dr. Savage, and his devoted associates, Mr. and Mrs. Perkins. I had been apprised of it some days previously, but could not, consistently with my duties, leave my station, till after morning service on Sunday before last worth of choice and seasonable goods, which we intend at Cavally. The attendance on the occasion, was peculiarly good, and to offer at very low prices, being anxious to reduce our stock. They consist in part of the following, viz. seemed already to be participating in the blessings granted to our brethren at Mount Vaughan. After service I was followed to my home by the most intelligent and hitherto the most wicked Krooman at Cavally. After sitting some time in silence, and with a downcast countenance, he then gave vent to his feelings: 'PAYNE, I must leave my people! All the words you speak are true,-I know they be true,-my heart wants to do them,-I must do them; but my people are so bad, and I have been so bad I can't please God between them.' Heretofore I had observed his concern about his soul, his consciousness in observing the Sabbath, &c. He had evidently been trying to conform outwardly to the requisitions of God. The object of my sermon this morning was to show, that by the deeds of the law no man living could be justified, and my remarks seemed to have led him to the conviction that samething more must be don: than he had before thought necessary. I determined to take him with me, not doubting that what he would there see, would fasten upon him the impression already made.

"As the evening shades appeared, we proceeded with slow and solemn step to the house of public worship. I never worshipped in such an assemfail to suit all purchasers, and to correspond with the bly before, -never heard such, may I not say, angelic singing, -such fervent prayer; and when I spoke to the listeners, and to a great extent regenerated multitude before me, from the words, 'Praise the Lord O my soul!' I felt that God had more than ten thousand times repaid me for all I had feared and suffered. O yes! to feel that I had been in any degree instrumental in turning to God the immortal souls before me, is cause for unspeakable gratitude,-for everlasting love and unreserved devotion to the service of

"But I must leave this delightful theme to be more particularly described by Dr. Savage, and tell you something more about GNEBUR, the young man Cavally above mentioned, Since his return he has been a daily and all day visiter at our house, both 'hearing and asking questions.' - Yesterday asked him, for the first time, if he thought God had given him a new heart! He replied, 'I know not if God has given me a new heart, but I do know what I hated at first I now love. I want to keep all God's laws as long as I live.' Grebun, said I, do you love to pray? 'I do,' was his reply. What do you say? 'I say, O God, I know first time I be bad too CONCENTRATED SIRUP OF SARSAPARILLA. much. I beg you, because Jesus died for me, to give me a new heart, so I can love God, and when I die, go to God's place.'

"Tell me, my dear brother, have we not reason to hope in this man. he advantageously used as a substitute for the various series and influence would promise more for the Gospel than he. Oh! I begin to expect great things for poor Africa. What God has done for us has made us ashamed of our want of faith in God. We now see that he can convert easy as make his sun shine, and if we are not faithless, we shall see yet. greater things."

Ox the 23d instant, we were cheered with the announcement that the United States brigantine Dolphin, so long and anxiously expected, had at length arrived in our harbor. We wish them success in their enterprise, and do most sincerely hope they may be spared to return to their happy country, and the bosom of their families. We may consider the gun that announced their arrival, the knell of slavery on this part of the coast. A few slaves may perhaps be purchased and conveyed along shore in canoes, or marched by land to some distant place of safe embarkation, but the trade can never again be carried on to an extent to disturb the operaions of honorable and lawful enterprise. "I rejoice in the growing prosperity of your cause, and congratulate you on the success of your efforts. May God bless it, and all engaged in its promotion."

Two newspapers are published in Liberia—the "Liberia Herald" and he "African Luminary." The first is edited with ability by the Rev. HILARY TEAGE, a negro man who emigrated in his childhood from Virginia; he latter by the Kev. John Says, principal of the Methodist Mission. There is a missionary press also at Cape Palmas. We wish success to both, but, having seen more of the Herald, which first appeared in the days of Ashmun, and knowing its value, and the sacrifices Mr. TEAGE is making to sustain it, we would rejoice to see the friends of Colonization extending to it a more generous patronage .- Nat. FAIRFIELD, (CONN.,) JUNE 19, 1840.

ROGER M. SHERMAN.

DEAR SIR,-The present is an interesting crisis in the affairs of the Colonization Society. For the accomplishment of its great objects, the speedy extension of colonial territory is essential. The condition of this ountry, in regard to its colored population, renders our connexion with Africa, more than that of any other nation, important to the interests of the coored race. We have other motives than those of ambition or cupidity, to inluce us to engross, in exclusion of Great Britain, as much as possible of the western coast of that country. The Colonization Society, by reformation in economy, and from other causes, is becoming more popular, both at the North and South, and we have just reason to expect a great increase of its power. If it receives the patronage which it merits, its just accommodation will demand vast extent of territory.

I admire the character of Governor BUCHANAN. He is a great man. He eems to possess the wisdom and firmness of Washington. So long as the Colony enjoys his superintendance, its affairs must be managed in the very best manner. Yours, with great respect,

Hon. S. WILKESON.

From the Spirit of Missions. WESTERN AFRICA-ASHANTEE.

"A shantee is a powerful kingdom contiguous to the Gold Coast, in Western Africa. Goomassie, the capital, it has been calculated, is more than one hundred and thirty miles from Cape Coast Castle, in a horizontal direction, out the distance is considerably greater by the pathway through the forest. The inhabitants of Coomassic alone have been estimated at seventy thousand; and the capital is surrounded by numerous towns and villages, which contain a large population. Juabin, at the distance of a day's journey, is said to be one third of the size of Coomassie. The entire population of Ashantee, with all its dependencies, is upwards of four millions. The marial exploits of the Ashantees in the countries on the coast, since the comnencement of the present century, have rendered their national name famiiar in Europe. The Fantees, who were originally an inland people, subject to the Ashantee crown, having, in the year 1807, afforded protection to HEEBO and APOUTAL, two of the vassal chiefs of OSAI TOOTO QUAMINA ting of Ashantee, who had rebelled against his authority, the king invaded Fantee with a powerful army. In the first instance, he appeared solicitous o obtain possession of the two rebel chiefs by amicable means, but he besame so exasperated by the insults and indignities which were offered to iim, that he formed the resolution entirely to extirpate the Fantees. Orders were accordingly issued to spare neither man, woman, nor child; and the ountry in the rear of the advancing army became, in consequence, a scene of utter desolation. Having signally wreaked his vengeance upon Abrah, he seat of government, where his messengers had been barbarously murlered, the king, with one-half of his army, pursued the retreating enemy owards the coast; while the other half was employed in destroying the owns as they passed along, leaving none of the people alive except some of he highest rank, who were reserved to experience more refined cruelties on he return of the conqueror to Coomassie.

"In the year 1811, Fantce experienced another invasion from the Ashanee, and a third in 1816, when Cape Coast underwent a long blockade. These repeated attacks inflicted great miseries upon the Fantees, and thousinds were dragged into the interior to be sacrificed to the superstitions of he conquerors. To avert a continued succession of such calamities, an embassy was sent to Coomassie, and Mr. Bowditch, who was placed at its nead, after the recall of Mr. James, concluded a treaty with the king. Mr. HUTCHINSON was left behind as resident at Ashantee, but returned to Cape loast on the eve of the war with GAMAN. After this, Mr. Duputs was ent by the British government to Coomassie, invested with consular powers. He concluded a second treaty, and returned to Cape Coast with numerous presents, accompanied by ambassadors to the king of England. New misinderstandings, however, arose; and an Ashantee army again marched towards the coast, at the close of the year 1823. Sir Charles McCarthy took the field against them, with the most encouraging prospects of success; for, besides a strong body of regular troops which was under his command. many chiefs threw off their allegiance to Ashantee, and all the districts on the sea coast, west of the Volta, were in arms, to the amount of thirty thousands warriors. But disastrous was the result of the first campaign. The Governor, with a division of the army, having crossed the Praa, advanced into the Warsaw country, were he engaged the Ashantees, and experiened a complete defeat. Sir CHARLES himself, after having been severely wounded, fell into the hands of the enemy, who cut off his head, and preserved it in the usual manner. His heart was eaten by the principal Ashanec chiefs, in order that they might, as they imagined, imbibe his bravery; and his flesh, having been dried, was divided, together with his bones, among the men of consequence in the army, who kept their respective shares about their persons, as charms to inspire them with courage.

"In the month of May following, the new king, Osai Ockotor, (the brother of OSAI TOOTO QUAMINA, who had died soon after the commencement of the war,) came down to his army, at the head of a strong re-inrecement, with the avowed intention to destroy Cape Coast Castle, and ferve the English into the sea. After some hard fighting, and when the Ashantee army had suffered the loss of many thousands of men, by the ravages of disease, and the want of provisions, the king drew off his forces, in the direction of Annamaboc. The last and decisive battle was fought bout the middle of the year 1826, twenty-four miles northeast of Acera : when the British and their allies gained the victory, and took the Ashantee camp and baggage. After this battle, negotiations were commenced; but, owing to various causes, it was not until the month of April, 1831, that a treaty of peace was signed, when the king sent one of his sons, and a son of the preceding king, as hostages, with six hundred ounces of gold, to be odged at Cape Coast Castle, as a security for the performance, on his part, of the conditions of the treaty, for the term of six years. At the end of six years, the gold was returned; and the present king, QUACOE DUAH, who had in the meantime succeeded his brother Osai Ockotoe, consented that his nephews, who had been given up as hostages, should be sent for education to England, where they at present remain.
